SINCOCK-SMALLEY

A very pretty June wedding took place Wednesday last, when Miss Marlon Elizabeth Sincock daughter of Mrs. William H. Sincock, and Mr. George William Smalley, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Smalley, at the home of the bride on North St.

The ceremony was performed at noon by Rev. F. Scott Smith, rector of the Church of Good Shepherd.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Almon Hall and the bride was given away by her uncle, Frank Sincock. Only immediate relatives and friends of the couple being present at the ceremony.

The bride was attractively gowned in white liberty satin and wore a veil of white mull with lilies of the valley. She also carried a shower bouquet of these flowers. The matron of honor was charmingly gowned and carried a bouquet of Jac roses.

A reception followed which was a very pleasant affair. The ushers being Misses Mildred Weed and Phyllis Wilson while Miss Catherine Sincock, a sister of the bride, served. Mrs. Mary Ayotte catered.

The decorations consisted of cut flowers, which added very much to the attractiveness of the occasion.

The bride is a young woman of gracious personality and has hosts of friends who extend congratulations upon the happy event. She graduated from the Houlton high school in the class of 1914.

Mr. Smalley is one of Houlton's young prosperous farmers and is held in highest esteem by a large circle of friends.

The couple left after the ceremony for an auto trip through the White Mountains.

Out of town guests included Mrs. Frank Hayes Fiske, of Boston; Miss Elizabeth Sincock, of Worcester; Mr. and Mrs. Tompkins, of Bath, N. B.

In December he entered an army officers' training school from which he graduated successfully. He spent some time at the front with the French and then entered the second officers' school from which he received his commission.

From 30 towns reported at 2 o'clock Tuesday Roix led Shaw by 265 votes.

SCHOOL CHILDREN MAKE GOOD RECORD

The second grade scholars, Fair St. building have made a splendid showing in the way of war saving, etc., and have subscribed $224 for war saving stamps, and $150 in Liberty bonds.

The children obtained $18.32 of the above amount by collecting and selling old rubbers and other junk.

THE BULLETIN

The Junior class of Houlton High school published last week their first issue of the "Bulletin."

While this is the first effort that the class has made in this line, it certainly reflects a great deal of credit upon the Board, not only for the excellent material but for the methodical way in which the business end has been conducted by Donald Alexander.

Cards have been received from Glasgow, Montana, announcing the birth June 9, of a son, (Charles Albert) to Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Dunn, paid.

ORGAN RECITAL

On Sunday afternoon and evening, June 9, the Methodist Church was filled to its capacity to hear W. J. Smith, Fredericton's Cathedral organist. Although space will not permit a description of the program in detail, it may be said that from Bach to Barowski Prof. Smith showed himself to be a master not only of the organ but also of phrasing and interpretation.

Perhaps the things of interest were his own compositions: The Canadian Tone Pictures, and the Evening Service in D. Particularly attractive were the first two of the former; Dawn and Night waiks, in which one could hear the birds and the rapid flow of the river. The Evening Service in D which was rendered by the united choirs, is truly a thing of beauty, and the composer himself said that he had never heard it sung better, even in Scotland, where it was first produced.

Although the afternoon program was long, with scarcely an hour and a half between it and the evening one, the church was again packed to the doors, and Houlton showed that it can appreciate a great man.

Space will not permit a detailed account of the solos, suffice it to say that Prof. Smith remarked that "Houlton has nothing to be ashamed of in its vocal work." Coming from such a man, this is a compliment to each and every one of the soloists and to the chorus collectively.

Monday evening Prof. Smith was entertained by the Houlton Music Club at the Baptist Church, when he gave a very instructive and comprehensive talk on chorus training.

Prof. Smith expressed his hearty appreciation of his reception by the Houlton people, and it is safe in saying that Houlton looks forward to his return in the near future.

B. AND A. RATES

The new passenger rates on the B. & A. have been in force going on two weeks, and Supt. McManis informs the TIMES that as far as he can see there is no diminution in the travel. Mileage books are redeemable at the office of the B. & A. in Bangor, at any time they are sent or presented.

In the future mileage books will represent money instead of miles. That is a coupon will represent 3 cents and not a mile. The rate "3 cents a mile" is rather misleading as applied to the B. & A. as well as other roads. It means that 3 cents a mile is the minimum charge per mile. If a person rides 10 miles, and presents a mileage book to the station of destination, to which the local rate is 50 cents, the conductor will remove 17 coupons from the mileage book, and return the passenger 1 cent in cash.

To sum the whole matter up Mr. McAdoo wins and the traveling public pay. The only advantage in having a mileage book when traveling is to save stopping to buy a ticket, you pay the same price.

It matters not whether a passenger travels to a destination and return, whether he buys a return ticket or not, there is no reduction in price the local rate, prevails, and it looks to the traveler like a case of "heads I win and tails you lose."

Many traveling men have purchased cars and will cover their territory that way for the summer at least.

"The minimum rate" sounds nice but is seldom used. "The local rate prevails" seems to be what most fares are and they will figure 5 cents per mile.

ABILITY APPRECIATED

A most pleasing occasion took place this Tuesday afternoon at the Red Cross headquarters when Cora M. Putnam the efficient secretary of Southern Aroostook Chapter was presented with a beautiful wrist watch as a birthday gift.

Mrs. Putnam has been most untiring in her efforts in behalf of the Red Cross and it was at first intended by those who originated the idea of a birthday gift to call on only a few of the downstairs workers for small sums to accomplish their purpose, but the spontaneity of their donations were such, and the willingness of the upstairs workers, after learning of the idea of those working down stairs, made the contributions possible to secure a wrist watch as the gift which was presented.

Mrs. Putnam is a most capable and efficient worker in the Red Cross, and while her untiring efforts have always been appreciated by every member of the local chapter, this occasion of a material recognition was as gratifying to the donors as to the recipient, and shows in a small way how much Mrs. Putnam's work in Southern Aroostook Red Cross Chapter are appreciated.

W. C. T. U.

The last meeting of the W. C. T. U. before the summer vacation, occurred on May 30th, at the home of Mrs. Bumpus on Kellerman St. In many ways the year just closed was a very successful one. Interesting programs were carried out, many new members gained and the following sums paid. One hundred dollars, Liberty loan; thirty-five dollars, Red Cross; fifteen dollars and fifty cents, Soldiers and sailors kitchen, and five dollars to public speaker. In addition to this seventy dollars county dues were paid.

FLAG DAY EXERCISES
CONDUCTED BY
B. P. O. E.MOST ABLE AND PATRIOTIC ADDRESS GIVEN BY HON.
LEONARD A. PIERCEAt Their Home on Friday, June 14

Flag Day was observed by Houlton Lodge B. P. O. E. on Friday last, before a large audience.

Besides the usual ceremony a most interesting and patriotic address was delivered by Hon. L. A. Pierce, and is given herewith in full.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Much as I appreciate the honor of being asked to take part in these beautiful and appropriate exercises, I have a feeling that the people of Houlton have heard me so often lately, that I really could not add to this occasion and I so told your committee. When they insisted however, I did not feel at liberty to decline, and those of you who are tired of listening to me, will have to blame your committee. The responsibility is theirs, not mine. At this time no one, no matter what his personal inclination might be has any right to decline any service that can aid in any way.

As we look out upon the world today what a vision do we see? The whole world at war. The most brilliant inventors, the ablest executives, the bravest soldiers, all supplying the greatest height of their powers to kill their fellowmen. The most skillful surgeons following the armies to relieve the wounded so far as may be that they may return to kill again. Into this struggle now comes America with all her force, arrayed as always not for power, not for conquest, but for right. "To the last dollar and the last man," says our leader; and from ocean to ocean comes the response, "Amen." Not lightly, not with the gaiety of the adventurer, but solemnly, resolutely, comes that response. We have been long suffering, we have been slow to anger, but now our hand is on the plow and we shall see our furrow to the end. The distance may be long, difficulties great and many, but America does not turn back.

The commander of our forces in France has set a text for the whole American people. You remember that when he went across with a body guard of soldiers and his staff, he went to the tomb of Lafayette, that great soldier and gallant gentleman in whom is symbolized the debt we owe to France. Eloquent French Statesmen made addresses worthy of that memorable occasion; this hunt soldier as he laid a wreath upon the tomb, said only this: "Lafayette, we are here." Just four words, but, Oh, what a world of meaning! Not alone the handful of men then on French soil, nor the hundreds of thousands, yea, millions which should be joined to his command, nor yet those valiant sailors of the Navy and the Merchant Marine who despite the U-boat have made possible the safe transport of our Army to France, he meant all these and much more beside; that as the authorized leader of the American forces in France, he pledged to her who had lost so much for Liberty the support of an army and a navy, limited only by the task to be done; but more than that he pledged, and he had the right to pledge, that from then until the end of the war, the wealth, the men, the women, the girls, the boys, all of our hundred millions, all we have would be devoted, heart and soul to this war.

It is of very little consequence what happens to our business, or material affairs during these years. As a writer of our boys in France, a copy of which I have just received from Lieut. Roland Clark, a member of this lodge, puts it "What good is your wealth or your honor, or your position going to do, if you are forced to say 'Weigh'ts' every morning." The big thing, the real thing, the true test of our American citizenship is, "Are we doing—not our bit—but everything that lies within our power?" If we do not, we shall never live long enough to outlive our own shame, if we do, generations, yet unborn shall rise up and call us blessed.

The boys at the Front recognize and appreciate the work that must be done at home. Witness a little poem, also from the Stars and Stripes.

"But war is war, and there must be someone to stay and do. The word unsung, unheeded, Making the stuff so needed, To help the fighters through. We're men like you, red blooded, too And it's tough to have no chance. To fight like hell, or die as well As the lads at the Front in France."

If we want example of what must be done, we can find it in the record of our allies. Take little Canada right at our doors, always shall we be proud that we live so near a Country which has done so much. You of Canadian blood have reason to be proud. Household after household has lost its best and bravest for this cause that now is ours. I know one brave mother, who had five fine sons, three had died in battle, two are now at the Front. Take England, from every rank in life, the toll has been taken. I saw the London Times a day ago and you could not read it with dry eyes. Just before the editorials they have Obituary Notices: "Killed in action, at the head of his Company, Captain Fity Stephen, Victoria Cross, Distinguished Service Order, Age 24, and last of the three sons of his sorrowing mother. By his death, the Earlom established by William the Conqueror becomes extinct." "Killed in action, Lieut. Robert Montgomery, Military Cross, age 26, beloved and only son of General James Montgomery, and adored fiancée of Jane Gray." We might not do that here, but how nobly pathetic in the frank grief of that broken hearted girl.

France, has perhaps suffered the most. Before Verdun even, Germany said, "That she was bled white." Little the Prussian knew the heroic soul of her men, women, children. Here is a letter found on a captured German:

A traitor has been shot—a little French lad belonging to one of those gymnastic societies, which wear the Tri-Color button. The poor little fellow in his infatuation wanted to be a hero. A German woman was passing along a wooded delfe, and the boy was caught and asked whether the French were about. He refused to give information. Fifty yards further on, a fire was opened from the cover of the wood. The prisoner was asked in French, if he had known that the enemy was in the forest and he did not deny it. He went with firm steps to a telegraph post and stood up against it, with a green vineyard behind him, and received the volley of the firing party, with a proud smile on his face. Infatuated boy, it was a pity to see such wasted courage.

"Wasted," a poet wrote of the above, "Wasted." Will not all lovers of the fair and true. Forever see that little figure stand Erect against the post, to die for France? Her leafing April vineyard better knew The beauty of that deed, than your dull hand, Wondering at honor, counting faith mischance."

For Allies such as these we cannot do too much. Are our forces worthy to fight by their side? Already they have proved themselves fit to associate with heroes. A corporal in a bombing party was mortally wounded and as he fell said to his neighbor: "I'm done; take these and throw them for me." A young Boston lawyer a Lieutenant, was leading a charge at the head of his platoon. He was struck and fell and when his men stopped to care for him, he gasped, "don't mind me, boys, keep on." And so they kept on, captured their trench and a brave life ended there in no Man's Land alone. But what a death to die? Those words, a worthy epitaph for any hero of history, the last upon his lips. "Don't mind me boys, keep on." Those words are a message for all of us, and if we do not keep on for a boy like that who died for us, there is no infamy black enough for our due.

From homes of every kind, these boys are going out to fight, your cause and mine. The Service Flags are the proudest decorations any place can have. Your Lodge of Elks can be proud of your beautiful home, of your membership, of your standing in the community, but the proudest possession that you have is your flag of 19 stars for 19 brave men, who for you have risked everything they have or ever hope to have.

These Service Flags are a symbol of the tie that makes this nation one. I rode the length of Fifth Ave., on a motor bus, I saw them on the luxurious Clubs down town. Flags with golden stars sprinkled among the blue. I saw them on the palaces of millionaires opposite Central Park, further up in the Negro quarter, among the Italians, and in the poverty stricken slums. They bring home to us as nothing else that in the real things of life people are not much different after all. In the palace or the tenement the pangs of a mother's travail, when those men children were brought into the world, the pride of the fathers were the same, and the never ending sorrow in those parents' hearts if their boys come not back to them will be just the same everywhere.

Out of it all I have faith to believe that there will come a new America, rising with splendor above the smoke of battle an American changed in many ways. Freed from its pleasure madness, cured of its money lust, but unchanged in its pure underlying devotion to the virtues symbolized by that beautiful emblem whose natal feast we keep tonight, to loyalty, valor, honor.

DISREGARDING THE LAW

It is high time that the automobilists who are paying no attention to the law requiring dimmers on their headlights be rounded up. If the motorists hereabouts are ignoring the law who is responsible? The man with bright lights and dimmers who snaps off his bright and leaves on his dim lights when another car approaches is not obeying the law. He is doing an act of courtesy perhaps in making it easier for the approaching driver, but the law requires that all of the time he must have certain lenses passed by the law or else he must have his plain glass frosted to a point one inch below the center of his light bulb. It is claimed that a great many of the new cars being sold are equipped with nothing but the plain glass headlights and that many purchasers have so far made little effort to comply with the dimming law. Are they to be permitted to operate their cars this way all Summer and are the motorists who have gone to the expense of equipping their headlights in a manner that complies with the law to be given no protection?

MAKING MEN FIT

The War Department is preparing to put into operation plans looking to rehabilitation of men rejected for military service because of slight and remediable physical defects. To this end "development battalions" are to be organized—one for each brigade depot—and placed in charge of officers specially trained for the work of building up the weak and restoring those possessed of slight infirmities curable by proper treatment. From these battalions it is proposed to draw soldiers to replace those found to be unfit in existing units, while the men afflicted with defects rendering them unavailable for duties overseas are to be trained for useful and needed service at home.

The project is one promising more than appreciable results, and the wonder is that it has not been undertaken before. The examining physicians have for some time been pointing out that a large proportion of the rejected men could be easily made fit, some of them placing this proportion as high as 50 or 60 per cent. The putting into effect of the reported plans may be reasonably expected not only to add materially to the draft yield, but also to prove highly beneficial to the men affected by them.

THINK OF THE SOLDIER

Imagine yourself in the soldier's place: Walking post in the dead of night with nothing but the blackness and some pretty good chances of being shot around you; your thoughts, naturally, would be back in the old home town; you would then realize as never before exactly how much its old Main street means to you, and you would know how much affection you have for the friends you left behind here. Words are inadequate to describe the unutterable loneliness which comes at that time—and at many other times to the boys who are doing more in helping to make the world a decent place to live in than observing meatless days, buying Liberty Bonds and contributing to the Red Cross.

This is a matter of more seriousness than we might think and every American should be ever thoughtful of the boys across the waters and the boys here at home who are undergoing training that they may join their fellow-fighters on the blood-red fields of sunny France.

Do you know any of our nation's soldiers who are now serving in France? No matter what the extent of your acquaintance with them, sit down and write a letter to each one.
Write the things which you would like to have written to you if you were in their places. From lonely hearts made glad by the coming of your letters will go up a prayer for blessings upon you; and the "kid" whom you knew in the days before the war will tackle with renewed vigor his end of the titanic task of changing No Man's Land into America's Land.

"GOVERNMENT SLACKERS"

An investigation made by some of the congressmen is alleged to have disclosed the fact that many young men engaged in Government service in Washington have been exempted from the draft. When the food production bill was under discussion recently it was shown that the secretary of agriculture had 2,000 men in his department exempted from military service, and it was said at that time that if this proportion were maintained in other departments of the Government more than 10,000 "Government slackers" would be found in Washington. As a step toward correcting any further abuse, intentional or accidental, the food production bill has been amended so as to prohibit the secretary of agriculture from employing any of the 11,000 men authorized by the bill for field service who are within the draft age. This will be an effective check on executive exemptions from military service. To secure exemptions in blanket form for any group of young men does not make for the best development of patriotism in those young men while it gives the young man outside a change to feel that special privilege is accorded those fortunate enough to be withing certain branches of Government service.

HIGH CROP YIELDS MEAN HIGH LABOR RETURNS

Most every farmer agrees that he could raise more corn or oats or hay or potatoes on a given acre of land if he set out to do so, and generally concludes his remarks by saying that to do so would cost him more than the increase would bring on the market.
In order to throw some light on this subject, Professor Frank App of the New Jersey Experiment Station collected data on 192 farms in Monmouth County, New Jersey. The average crop yield of the county was rated at 100 per cent. The income of the farm was compared with the average acre yield. The results are illuminating. On farms where the yield was 15 per cent or less than the average, the farmer worked for nothing and paid for the privilege in addition, and the lower the yield the greater was the net loss on the farm. On the other hand, the net gain increased steadily with the gain in acre production, even after all expenses of growing the crop were deducted. The man who grew crops one-third larger than the average received three times as much money for his effort.
Professor App sums up his findings as follows: "Expenses per crop acre increase with the increased production but not nearly so rapidly as receipts."

THE "COST" OF WAR

While some of us are shaking heads because of the "awful cost" of the war to America, others of us should remind them that the United States has yet enrolled, in proportion to population, only one-half as many men as Scotland has sent to the front —and barely one-twentieth of our men enrolled have yet seen Europe.
Nearly a million men has Scotland sent to the army out of a total population of 5,000,000. And they are still going. No country outside the actual battleground shows more clearly the effects of the war than Scotland.

"We have few young men left in Scotland," Harry Lauder says in his book, "A Minstrel in France." "It is rarely indeed that in a Scottish village, in a glen, even in a city, you see a young man in these days. Only the very old are left and the men of middle age. And you know why the young men you see are there. They cannot go because, although their spirit is willing, their flesh is too weak to let them go, for one reason or another. Factory and field and forge —all have been stripped to fill the Scottish regiments and keep them to their full strength."

If a time should come when one of every five people in this country should be on the firing line or in the trenches or war camps, then we might be justified in weighing the "cost" of our service for humanity on its march toward righteousness.

Now we, all of us, know why we are in the war and understand the high purpose of the nation, so let us quit this worry and plaint and whine, and take our punishment, man fashion.

QUADRUPLE OUR DEMAND

The booze dragon dies hard. It has powerful friends and skilled physicians. In spite of the death penalty pronounced by the people and hourly being formally ratified in the long legal processes, that overwhelming sentiment is defied, in the highest and in the lowest places. The states that have ratified the federal amendment are: Mississippi, January 9; Virginia, January 10; Kentucky, January 14; South Carolina, January 23; North Dakota, January 25; Maryland, February 13; Montana, Feb. 19; Texas, March 4; Delaware, March 13; South Dakota, March 20, and Massachusetts, April 2.

The fight for freedom from the domination of the alcoholic Kultur must go on, and let us not forget who are camouflaging their positions while standing as war masters of the booze militarism. Excuses for serving the devil will not be accepted when the era that is surely coming is here.

But no one, high or low, can prevent the righteous voice of the American people from rising, and now is the time to insist that administrations take their own medicine, even if it is bitter.

On for national prohibition, and the saving of the millions of tons of food and the millions of tons of fuel, and the millions of hours of precious labor that are worse than wasted that the booze profiteers may grow fatter, and the political pot-boilers may hold their power over the "personal liberty" and plug-ugly gang as an asset for the "high up!"

Let us quadruple the demand for an end to this booze-political stranglehold on the intelligence and character of America.

If we can do without wheat we can do without beer, it would seem.

THE MODERN BARBARIAN

The barbarism of the dark ages is reincarnated under the name of German Kultur. The parallel shows in numberless ways. The barbarians of old destroyed the art treasures of Rome as the modern German does of any and every city he can reach. The barbarian of old enslaved his prisoners exactly as Germany is doing. He knew nothing of the laws of civilization regarding the treatment of non-combatants, and if he had had the means with which to do, he would have dropped bombs upon hospitals, killing wounded men and nurses, exactly as Germany is doing today. The barbarian of old was a natural-born pirate, and he would have thought it highly meritorious if he could have torpedoed and sunk unarmed vessels of neutral powers, or even the merchant marine of a belligerent people.

Centuries ago civilization grew up and became so strong that the barbarian was practically put out of business. Civilization thought that this civilization was for aye. And so it continued in its progressive course, leading the races of the world onward and upward, little dreaming that in its own name a barbarian, worse than that which it had conquered was growing in its own midst. Unanalyzed, unheeded and, therefore, unchecked, the modern monster grew, until civilization found itself facing its ancient enemy in type more terrible than it had ever seen. The call to combat instantly went forth. Somewhat tardily but finally all civilization finds itself arranged against its ancient enemy, and this time the work of elimination must be made complete. When the chastisement is over, there must be nothing left from which the old barbaric spirit may spring or be bred.

Now that it is locked in a life and death struggle, civilization must go as far as it needs to go to clean out forever the monster and all his spawn.

PEARY'S ILLNESS

Admiral Peary, so "run down," as common parlance has it, that blood transfusion has to be resorted to that his life may be saved, is an example of what the work and fret of civilization can do to a man who rose triumphant over the worst that nature in its cruelest and wildest moods could do to him in continuous battles that lasted a quarter of a century. During the past few years—long before this Country entered the war Admiral Peary has been working with characteristic zeal to stir the country at large and especially the powers that be at Washington, to a realization of the need of building up our fighting forces in the air.

He threw himself heart and soul into that cause, and has literally worn himself out by his lecturing, his writing, and his work on various committees. He saw three or four years ago what must have come to see only in the past few months the vital importance of a big aviation program and the necessity of getting to work on it at once. He has recently told a little story that shows the obstacles that he faced. He was addressing a certain congressional committee, but his facts and figures, his expert opinion and his patriotic plans did not keep the committee from yawning in his face. When he left the room one enough for him to hear: "How this airship nonsense does bring out the nuts!"

Doubtless that senator has come to see the light before this time, but the battle of educating him has broken down the man who finally fought his way to the pole, though it took him 23 years to overcome the unspeakable.
On that last expedition, though Peary was then 53 years old, he was in such superb physical condition that the young men of the party, MacMillan, Borup, and Marvin, were literally unable to keep up with him on the marches. Says MacMillan: "We were hanging on by his coat-tails instead of helping him, and that is why we were, one by one, dropped behind on the final dash." Admiral Peary will be 62 this month. It is wholly likely that he would have been a healthy and strong man today if his work in the northern wastes had kept him there till today. He is a victim of what the Eskimo dog-driver, when he was told about the great war, called "the pi-bloko world" the world gone mad with the diseases of civilization.

Twelve Tire Tests, No. 8

This series of twelve tests is designed to take the uncertainty out of tire-buying.

Organization

MICHELIN users have sometimes wondered how it can be possible to sell Michels at such low prices in view of the unsurpassed quality which is built into these tires.

The answer lies in the Michelin watchword: Economical Efficiency.

Ever since Michelin invented the pneumatic automobile tire 23 years ago, Michelin engineers and efficiency experts have studied means of producing and selling tires more efficiently.

Every expenditure that will result in better tires or service has been cheerfully made; but every expense that would not stand this test is scrupulously avoided.

Economical Efficiency has enabled Michelin to supply the motoring world with "better tires for less money."

Joe Martin, an Indian got in the municipal court Friday morning for being light fingered.

That day Joe had a hunch that he would like a nice finger ring and paid a visit to Blithen, the West End Jeweler, among one stock he left without purchasing, saying he would call again. Later in the day he called on Osgood and said he had a ring to sell and upon examining it and noting a tag on it, Mr. Osgood suspected all was not right, but he tendered the amount and became owner of the ring, immediately he took the ring and went on a still hunt for the rightful owner and Mr. Blithen claimed it was one that he had shown the Indian customer but had not missed it from his tray.

Officer Hogan was notified and in a few minutes he had rounded up the light fingered gent and locked him up for safe keeping and Friday's session of the Municipal Court brought out all the details. Blithen got back his ring, Osgood his money and "Joe" 30 days.

LIBERTY BONDS

The prices of Liberty Bonds upon the stock market indicate clearly that it is easier to meet financial needs by selling Government securities than it is by selling securities of any other class. This very fact should be a strong deterrent influence which should keep people from selling Government bonds. It is quite likely that the retention of Liberty Bonds will prove to be a wise financial transaction.

From the standpoint of patriotism, which prompted the original purchase of Liberty Bonds, there can be no excuse whatever for disposing of them. The purchaser of a Liberty Bond makes a definite, specific act of handing over personal funds to the Government, thus providing actual money which can be used for military purposes. Each bond is thus transformed into a concrete, positive unit of labor which is expended in beating the enemy. The more bonds bought, the larger the volume of fresh effort contributed.

But the original purchaser of the bonds should keep them and not relinquish them to another person. If they are so relinquished, the bonds passed become instantly another's contribution, instead of that of the original purchaser. Public sentiment is now demanding absolute support of the war, and nothing but actual possession of the bonds, paid in full by the original purchaser, is complete satisfactory evidence of his contribution, made in that form, to American victory.

MUST LINK OUR FINANCIAL AND MILITARY STRATEGY FOR DURATION OF WAR

By JAMES C. WHIE

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The linking of our financial with our military strategy for the duration of the war is the most pressing task before us. This co-ordination of the two activities will involve a new educational campaign both in Congress and among the American people, and it will involve our abandonment of the "fight or fiddle" attitude with which we entered on this great adventure, but unless we make this change we are in grave danger of winning a war and being financially unable to recuperate at its close.

Acted Like an Improvident Housewife

Our financial undertakings to date have been made on a rather hit or miss basis. With calls for a certain specific amount of money, Congress has set itself to the task of producing that money much after the manner of the improvident housewife who visits the pawnshop of Sunday night. More attention has been paid to raising the desired amount than in studying the methods used. While the gentlemen in Congress have intimated that the taxes imposed were only preliminary advance charges, as it were, on the prosperity of the country, they hardly believed their own declarations because at the time they were obsessed with the idea that the mere announcement of American participation in the struggle would drive the Germans from the trenches and cause them to plead for peace. The financial program as enacted accordingly represents a temporary makeshift scheme rather than a sane solid undertaking on which new taxation methods be superimposed.

We have now reached the point where a distinct shift must be made. It will not be sufficient to plan for the present, but for the future. We must keep in mind the calls not only of the next 12 months, but of the year following and even the second year following, and the financial program must be founded on a base broad enough to sustain our future requirements. The time has passed for killing the fatted calf unless there are other calves in the pasture lot with beef possibilities as the war wears on. It should require little argument to make plain that a financial program created on the assumption that peace will come this fall or next spring would be entirely out of proportion and even dangerous, assuming that the contest may run till 1921 or even later.

Out of Congress word must be sent to the American people that peace, the peace we all desire can only be had by a display of man power. Out of Congress the declaration must be made that, while we are ready as ever to consider a fair and just peace, the likelihood of such an ending coming other than through force of arms is most improbable.

Slumber-Making Assertions

For over a year substantial portions of our people have been soothed to slumber by assertions and declarations made by well intentioned people that the war was due to collapse almost any day by reasons of conditions within the central powers. They were told that Germany would halt because of lack of man power, because of lack of food, because of lack of munitions and war materials. In

A WORD FOR MOTHERS

It is a grave mistake for mothers to neglect their aches and pains and suffer in silence—this only leads to chronic sickness and often shortens life.

If work is tiring, if your nerves are excitable, if you feel languid, weary or depressed, Scott's Emulsion will prove a wonderful strengthener.

It possesses the very elements to invigorate the blood, nourish the nerves and build strength. Every druggist has Scott's. Try it.

the enemy countries they have not been above encouraging the idea with the idea of slowing down our war activities.

In no other way can the German attitude on certain matters be explained. They allowed the censored German newspapers circulated in Switzerland and in Holland to carry long stories of German food distress. German man power hunger and picturesque stories of how even the statues in the market places, the bells in the church steeples, and the copper from roof gutters was being seized to meet the pressing needs of the hour.

Yet even at the time the shortage of metals was being promulgated the Germans were building their long range cannon with which they later bombarded Paris and they were able to roll up on the western front reserves in such numbers that they have not yet been all employed but are being held at far distant points awaiting the real emergency.

Today and it must be appreciated by the members of Congress in framing the new revenue bill and by the people in submitting to the taxes, the German situation as to man power and to supplies in general is very strong. By reason of her peace forays into Russia she has been able to withdraw hundreds of thousands of troops which were engaged in police work, she has been able to replenish her labor store in her munition plants and she has been able to draft men from the prostrate nations into her own army. Her shortage in grain has been met by supplies from Ukraine and adjacent territory, and she has been hauling flour through Galicia in such an amount that the Galicians have risen in protest.

Her cotton shortage has evidently been met in part by developments in Turkey, and the situation will improve materially next year, while the ore and coal fields in Poland and Russia have been opened and the forced peace with Roumania has made the oil wells of that country available.

Chances of Revolution Remote

The possibility of a peace coming through rebellion or revolution in either Germany or Austria or both nations must also be set aside as an immediate happening. There will be strikes; there will be disturbances and uprisings, but they will have to develop beyond the present stage in strength and force before we can hope for material advantages. The blunders of the allies in hoping for a separate peace with Austria have really wet blanketed many possibilities in this line and a drying period will be necessary before we can inspire these people to rise again. The most encouraging sign in that direction is that we as a whole have begun to appreciate the possibilities.

The hope of peace through a collapse of the central powers on a statistical basis must in short be discarded. It is possible, but not probable, and when that is made plain to the people of the United States we will have advanced in our business of winning the war.

We are going to win the war; there need be no fear on that score, but we will win it all the more easily by appreciating the facts in advance. The American people have learned how to fight with their backs against the wall and they will not weaken no matter what the stress. Gen. Foch in an early work on military strategy wrote, that "we never lose the battles we are determined to win." That is our exact situation, but we must have a care and build a financial program that will conserve our resources so that when it comes to holding out for the last three months, we will be able to do it even though all others fall by the wayside.

There has been criticism in some quarters that President Wilson in addressing Congress spoke chiefly about the need of money without attempting to develop any specific plans. He suggested taxes on luxuries on incomes and war profits, but the critics believe he should have gone further. Yet his avoidance of that time, does not lessen the responsibility of Congress. It may be that in avoiding the outlining of set rules the President was anxious to allow Congress to develop along its own orientation. Inasmuch as the complaint has been current for some time that the President has usurped the powers of Congress, so it has functioned only in a rubber stamp fashion, the opportunity would seem to be at hand for Congress to make its own views known.

Representative Claude Kitchen of Scotland Neck has started the campaign in a rather unfortunate manner by charging that the new tax bill is simply the result of agitations on the part of the newspaper publishers to obtain a modification of the postal zone rate scheme, but inasmuch as Secretary McAdoo has disavowed this declaration, and called on Kitchen to retract, the incident can be regarded as closed. The Kitchen talk, though, is a trifle unfortunate, inasmuch as it reveals a peculiar state of mind for a man who is supposed to sit as a directing officer in the framing of a revenue measure.

It is an easier task to define an ideal tax bill than to frame or enact one, but it will not do any harm if the members approach the task with fasting and prayer. It is hoped sincerely that when the new bill is presented to the House, the people of the country will be saved from any repetition of the statement made at the time the last bill was projected, that it had been built with all eyes shut. Even the richest country in the world can hardly afford to stand many experiments in financial legislation carried on in such a six-day kitten attitude.

BOYS FOR FARM WORK

Augusta, June 11.—Farmers who want the help of the Junior Volunteers this year should make early application to the headquarters of the Maine Division of the United States Boys' Working Reserve at the Mobilization Camp, Winthrop Center, Maine. Arrangements have been made to send 2,000 boys to the farms and it looks now as if more than that number would be asked for. It is a case where the demand is likely to exceed the supply. The farmer who defers this application until the eleventh hour may find that all the boys have been placed.

An indication of the popularity of this branch of war work is found in the fact that there have already been placed this year 350 boys who have gone back to the farms on which they were employed a year ago. Three hundred and fifty farmers asked that they be given the boys who worked for them last year and the 350 boys were glad to go back to their former employers. It would appear from this showing that the farmers liked the boys and the boys like the farmers. In addition to these boys who were in the work last year about 300 others have already been placed and there are several hundred boys at the training camp in Winthrop who will soon go out to help lick the Kaiser by doing their part in raising war time crops in the State of Maine. As each contingent leaves the training camp another takes its place, but the call from the farms is so insistent that the men in charge of the movement are calling attention to the likelihood that the demand will outrun the supply. For that reason it is suggested that farmers who want help of the boys would make their requests for them without loss of time.

NERVOUS, RUN-DOWN, HAGGARD-LOOKING

MICHELIN MAN'S TIRE HINTS

The Evil of Traveling on Deflated Tires

A man came in here the other day, said Mr. Cates, of the H. M. Cates & Son, who had driven his car several miles on the rim, a tire having been punctured some distance away from town. The walls of the casing were scored and scraped, while the fabric, which was torn and frayed, was broken away from the rubber, and the heads were badly damaged. All this trouble was caused by the squeezing of the casing between the edges of the rim and the ground. Inside the casing, small irregular shaped pieces of the tube were adhering to the fabric. All these evidences of abuse were conclusive proof that both casing and tube were badly injured if not ruined beyond repair. All things considered, it's expensive business, traveling on deflated tires. It's far cheaper, says Mr. Cates to carry a spare, as every sensible motorist does, now-a-days, but still there are a lot of short sighted men who go along without an extra tire, hoping that the inevitable will never happen, and then, to cap

REGISTRANTS IN CLASS 1-A MAY ENTER NAVAL RESERVE

"A statement was made in a late Boston paper that registrants in Class 1-A will not be allowed to enroll in the Naval Reserve Force. This is a misstatement and papers are asked to correct same. The status of men in Class 1A is the same as before; that is, men who are not within a current draft quota may enroll in the Naval Reserve Force and their local boards must give them their release."

WAR TIME RECIPES

COTTAGE CHEESE DISHES

Cottage cheese, while it has long been known, has been little appreciated. Easy to make, it has often been poorly made and unattractively served. In food value cottage cheese is in the class with lean meat and eggs, being more valuable than either in material that goes to build muscle, blood, and bone.

Cottage cheese in fact is a food that may form an important part of the diet served either alone or in combination. In soup, sauce, meat-like dish, salad, or dessert, cottage cheese may be well used. As a basis for the main dish of the meal it will materially reduce expenses, appeal to the appetite, and save meat.

Being made from skim milk, which now is either food to live stock or wasted, cottage cheese makes available directly for human food a valuable but little appreciated dairy by-product.

UNCOOKED COTTAGE CHEESE DISHES

Plain Cottage Cheese:

Cottage cheese may be served plain as the main dish of a luncheon or supper in place of cold meat.

Variations:

Mix broken nut meats, chopped pimientos, finely cut green peppers, diced cucumbers, or other crisp vegetables with the cheese, horse radish, onion juice, and parsley make a good combination.

Season dry cheese rather well, pack into buttered earthen or enamel dish, chill it, turn it out on a platter, and serve it in slices like cold veal loaf.

Mix with the cheese a small quantity of leftover ham or corned beef, finely ground, and season the whole with made mustard. Serve this in slices, or turn the mold out on a border of lettuce leaves.

Suggested Menu:

Molded cottage cheese, baked potatoes, lettuce, sliced tomatoes or cucumbers; crisp corn pone or oatmeal muffins; tea, coffee, or whey lemonade; fruit and dessert.

Cottage Cheese With Cream And Sugar

Use in place of it: Meat or eggs for breakfast or supper.

Variations:

Add berries, peaches, or other fresh fruits; canned fruits, raisins, cut dates, or other dried fruits; brown sugar, honey, jam or marmalade, or chopped nuts.

Suggested Menu for a Summer Breakfast:

Cottage cheese with cream and fruit (cornflakes if desired); toasted Victory bread; coffee. For a heartier meal, include baked or fried potatoes, or a cereal.

Egg Combinations

Scrambled Eggs with Cottage Cheese

Proportions: For each egg, use 1 tablespoon milk, 1-3 teaspoon salt, plenty of pepper. 1 rounding tablespoon cottage cheese, pinch of baking soda, fat to grease pan.

Method: Mix eggs, seasonings, and 1 tablespoon milk for each egg. Scramble eggs as usual in greased pan till entirely cooked. Neutralize acid in cheese with soda, stir lightly into egg. Serve immediately.

Variations: Parsley and pimientos or chives, added to egg.

Suggested Supper or Luncheon Menu:

Scrambled eggs with cottage cheese, baked potatoes, dandelion or lettuce salad, or sliced tomatoes; barley muffins, tea or coffee, fruit sauce.

Creamy Eggs With Cottage Cheese

1 cup milk
1 tablespoon flour
4 eggs
1 cup cottage cheese
1/4 teaspoon soda
1 tablespoon fat
1-3 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon salt
Paprika
Parsley or pimientos

Make a thick sauce with the milk, flour, butter, and seasonings. Cook five minutes and pour gradually on the cheese, which has been neutralized with the soda dissolved in a little of the milk. When the cheese and sauce are well blended, return them to the top of the double boiler and reheat over hot water. Beat the eggs slightly pour them into the warm sauce, and mix well. As the mixture sets in a soft custard on the bottom and sides of the boiler, scrape it up carefully, forming large soft curds. The mixture is cooked when it is of a creamy consistency throughout. This quantity will serve eight or more people.

NATIONAL WAR SAVINGS DAY
MUST BE MADE BIG SUCCESS

The National War Savings Committee, which is carrying on, through its State and local committees, a nationwide campaign to get all the people on or before June 28 to pledge themselves to save to the utmost of their ability and to buy War Savings Stamps with their savings, has given out the following statement:

"Those of us who remain at home while others do the fighting have an ever-increasing number of opportunities to do definite and highly important work for our country. We wish to do this work as an expression of the gratitude we feel in being privileged to continue at our usual tasks, to enjoy the loving companionship of our families, to meet freely with our friends and neighbors to enjoy all the security of life and most of the pleasures and the economic privileges of peace times while other men, who have had to put aside all these things and fighting our battles for us on the sacred soil of France and on the high seas.

"Our new opportunity to serve comes as a result of designating June 28 as National War Savings Day, a day on which all men and women and all children of sufficient years to appreciate the day's significance are called upon to pledge themselves to save to the utmost of their ability and to conserve all possible labor and materials for the Government, and to buy War Savings Stamps with their savings. Our part is to do everything possible to make this day stand out among the great days of this period of the war.

"Could any one of us be asked to do less than this? Could any one of us refuse to do so little a thing to win a war for the world's freedom? Could any one of us put aside this plea for saving while all Europe is crying out in its agony to be released from the clutches of the monster that is befalling all it touches? Could we refuse so simple a thing and at the same time ask other men to give their lives that our own precious lives be spared and our treasures be kept safe from the terrors of the Hun?

"Our duty is clear, our privilege is great, our sacrifice is little, our work is important.

"National War Savings Day is to be the great rallying day on which everyone in our country is expected to pledge himself or herself to save and economize. This saving and economizing will first of all leave in the markets a greater supply of labor and materials for the use of the Government with which to fight the war. And then the money savings of the individuals are to be invested in War Savings Stamps.

"What the Government asks us to do is to pledge ourselves to buy at definite periods with our savings a specific amount of War Savings Stamps. The thing to be accomplished is to get subscriptions which will take care during the balance of the present year of the unsold portion of the $2,000,000,000 of War Savings Stamps authorized by the Congress to be sold during 1918.

"When one stops to think of the matter, it is really a small thing to raise $2,000,000,000 in a country of more than 100,000,000 people. If everyone would do his share, it would be necessary for each person to subscribe to only $20 worth of stamps.

"The duty of us at home is to see to it that the entire amount is subscribed. We must work to that end. We must add to our already great army of war savers. We must make more sacrifices ourselves and urge sacrifices upon others. National War Savings Day must be made the great success all of us hope for."

SOLDIERS AT FRONT

ARE SUPERSTITIOUS

A more superstitious lot of men than the soldiers who are fighting for civilization on the western battle front could not be found. The professional baseball player in America has "nothing on" the allied soldiers.

There isn't a soldier among the millions who won't balk at lighting the third cigarette from the same match. The boys smile at their own childishness or whatever one wishes to call it, but nevertheless they say they will "light another match, even if matches are scarce."

But there is another superstition which is taken far more seriously. The soldier who goes over the top the first time after he has had a leave does not expect to return. Any British, French or American soldier will give you the names of his friends who were killed the "first time over" after coming back from a furlough. And so it happens that, notwithstanding the hardship of the life at the front and the keen appetite the enlisted man has for a few days' tranquility and security, tens of thousands of soldiers decline to accept a leave. They don't like this "over the top" when they return. Before they have had leave they don't mind—that is they don't exactly mind—but it is indeed with many misgivings and unquestionably a weak heart that they go over when the come back from leave.

There is another phase to this superstition which has deeply engrained itself upon the minds of the soldiers. If a soldier "trades leave" with another, he, the man who proposed the trade, is marked for death the first time he "goes over."

A correspondent was talking recently with an Austrian who has been at the front since the first battle of Ypres. He says that he has known 14 Austrians who were killed after they had traded leave. In the midst of constant death it is perhaps the most natural thing in the world that there should be superstitions among the soldiers.

There are some more sacred than others about which the boys hesitate to talk. If a letter from a mother arrives on the day a raiding party is sent out, the members of the party—particularly the man who received the letter—are liable to be captured. Strange deduction this, but the men have plenty of time for sombre thinking and introspection. A man from Queenstown has constantly in his pocket a sixpence which was given to him in Australia by a young woman. It has a hole in it. He says he knows it is his keeper. "I wouldn't lose it for all the money in England," he says.

ANCIENTS HAD

LITTLE SUGAR

This war is bringing to our attention the value and importance of many daily necessities heretofore regarded as a matter of course and some of them have been thrown almost overnight into the category of luxuries. Such, for instance, is sugar. Who would have dreamed that this article of food, virtually inexhaustible, really would play such an important part. We feel we cannot do without it, it is a part of our lives, and yet the world did not always have sugar, and got along well without it just as it did without potatoes prior to the discovery of America.

Sugar, in chemistry, is the generic name of a certain series of carbohydrates, a compound giving a sweet taste but free from glucosides.

Sugar cane has been known for centuries. Milk sugar was obtained by Fabrizio Bartolotti in 1615, and in the middle of the 18th century Margraf found that the sugars yielded by the beet, carrot and their roots were identical with the sugar cane. The sugar obtained from honey was investigated by Lovitz and Praust, and the latter decided on three species: cane sugar, grade sugar and fruit sugar.

Sugar was only vaguely known to the Greeks and Romans. It was introduced into Europe during the time of the Crusades. Its use gradually developed, so much so that it has become a necessary part of daily existence. Not until this war have the people awakened to the fact of what it "means to be deprived of it."

CLARIONS ARE THE RANGES

saving of fuel, time, labor, repairs. These are times for real economy, and a Clarion is the range to help you. Lowest running expense is the secret of range economy. Divide the cost of a Clarion, over thirty years of right service, count the savings in operation, the satisfaction of faultless cookery, and you will find a Clarion the best investment you ever made.

WOOD & BISHOP CO., Bangor, Me. Established 1883

THE spirit of war-time economy is shown not only in the saving of money and food, but also in the conservation of time and work in the home. It is the duty of every American housewife to aid in local war activities, but many are unable to do so because of the great amount of time required for ordinary household cares.

Electricity solves this problem by doing the tasks that ordinarily take the best part of a day in a few hours, giving more leisure time and accomplishing the work in a far more efficient manner.

UNIVERSAL
Electric Iron

makes the hardest of all household tasks one of the easiest. Does the week's ironing in a few hours in a cool, comfortable kitchen and saves you countless steps.
